

TRUE POTENTIAL CAUTIOUS PORTFOLIO

Portfolio Objective

The objective of the True Potential Cautious Portfolio is to provide investors with a way to achieve their investment goals. The Portfolio offers full exposure to different manager styles within the Cautious risk profile. We review the Portfolio monthly and, if necessary, rebalance to the allocation of styles that we believe offers the best opportunity for growth within the Cautious risk profile. The Portfolio aims to produce a higher risk-adjusted outcome at a lower average cost, compared to an equally-weighted model of Cautious funds.

Risk Profile: Cautious

The Cautious Investor may be sensitive to short-term losses. A Cautious Investor's potential aversion to losses could compel them to shift into a more stable investment if significant short-term losses occur. Analysing the risk-return choices available, a Cautious Investor is usually willing to accept somewhat lower returns in order to assure greater safety of his or her investment.

Investment Commentary

The True Potential Cautious Portfolio returned -2.33% over the month of October with equity markets falling as investors became nervous believing that markets, specifically the US, had advanced too far. Global bonds were up 1.34% over the month with inflation linked and UK bonds up 2.24% and 0.91% respectively in Sterling terms, bolstering overall portfolio performance and illustrating diversification. Returns within equities overall were negative with global equities registering a 5.23% loss in Sterling terms. Up until the start of October, the US had been incredibly strong with returns of 14.65% year-to-date in Sterling terms, rising on the back of strong economic and company data. The catalyst for the volatility experienced was investors becoming worried that interest rate rises within the US were starting to bite after eight 0.25% hikes since December 2015. This has then spilt over into other global markets, arguably an overreaction. On a relative basis the UK was one of the best performers with Sterling weakness helping to buoy up returns for the larger multi-national companies in the UK.

Moving onto individual fund performance, the True Potential Schroder Cautious Fund was one of the strongest performers due to their alternative asset exposure and large cash position. The True Potential Close Brothers Cautious Fund illustrated solid stock picking skills and benefitted from the gradual adjustment to a more defensive position in recent months, all of which helped to mitigate the adverse performance experienced in equity markets throughout October.

Over the month, we made no changes to the Portfolio conscious that the managers have been making some significant changes. SEI have been paring back exposure to the UK at the higher risk end and have introduced a new fund to reduce currency risk and to take advantage of tactical/short term opportunities such as the addition to commodities. Allianz have updated their strategic asset allocation and recently introduced strategies to hedge overseas developed equity exposure up to 60%, which should help to dampen volatility should Sterling appreciate as the Brexit deadline nears. Close Brothers have been paring back exposure to the tech sector in the US, moving towards more value orientated defensive stocks and increasing overall cash levels. As always, the optimisation factors of risk, cost, expected return and risk-adjusted return remain paramount and we are happy that all are currently optimised.
